"CAMILLE" TO BE HIP'S OFFERING
Clara Kimball Young in the immortal tragedy made famous both in legitimate and operatic stage, "Camille," opens a two-day engagement starting this morning at the Hip. If one were to write the history of the world's most gripping kind of drama, it would be a great part of legitimate contemporary stage history for the past 20 years.

From Sarah Bernhardt to the repertoire of every stock actress in this country as well as in Europe, the tragedy of "Our Lady of the Carmelites" has been the vehicle by which thousands of ambitious stage women have endeavored to show to the world their fitness for a prominent position in their chosen profession.

"Camille" embodies everything supposed to be contained in the most successful of dramas. Its heart interest is of the gripping kind that one seldom sees now in the pot boiling scenarios of this day. It is real romance and tragedy blended into a dramatic masterpiece work that will live along with the classics.

It is said that Camille did more to establish Sarah Bernhardt as the world's most gifted tragedienne than any of the hundreds of parts made famous by this wonder woman in her years before the footlights.

It is also true that Clara Kimball Young, before she became a screen star, bore the reputation of being the most gifted "Camille" of her day. She was, in the days of her stock experience, a much sought "Camille" by managers of high class stock companies in the larger cities all over the United States.

Thus it is seen that when Camille was chosen as a picture vehicle for Miss Young she endowed the production with all the rich experience of her thousand appearances in the part on the legitimate stage.

The World Film company has given Miss Young a beautiful production of the famous semi-classic and it will be further augmented with the usual Pathe single reels of current events.

WONDER KIDDIES ON LAMARA BILL

Jane and Katherine Lee, small of size but internationally big in reputation, the two best known and most loved of motion picture children, have been rewarded by William Fox with a five-reel production, in which they have the stellar roles. It is called "Two Little Imps" and is at the Lamara today.

The photoplay was made at the Fox studios in Fort Lee, N. J., under the direction of Kenan Buel, the veteran film maker who screened the film version of Rider Haggard's "She."

Everyone who has ever seen the Lee kiddies in any of the features in which they have appeared, has come from the playhouse thoroughly convinced that Jane and Katherine are as adept at the film art as any older screen star. In addition to the amazing natural talent with which they are endowed, the two have learned every camera trick because they have lived in screen atmosphere almost since they began to toddle.

The picture in which they have the leading parts is rich in wholesome, delightful humor but it does not want for dramatic moments. Especial care was taken in preparing the scenario to make one of extraordinary wide appeal while adapted throughout to the particular kind of work which Jane and Katherine do best.

Jane Lee is now five years old. "Big sister" Katherine is slightly more than seven, but Jane with thirteen appearances for Fox films, has the longer record in the celluloid. Both had important roles in the great spectacle, "A Daughter of the Gods."

Jane's last work was in "A Small Town Girl," with June Caprice, while Katherine's most recent playing was in "Sister Against Sister," starring Virginia Pearson.

HARDING DAVIS COLUMBIA FILM
"Billy and the Big Stick," "Two Kentucky Boys," "Climbing Mt. Washington" and "Gathering Bananas and Coconuts," are comprised in this program.

"Billy and the Big Stick" is a screen version of Richard Harding Davis' famous story of that name which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. It deals with the unusual and exciting experience of a young American engineer down in Hayti. This story contains a strong plot and is surcharged with typical American humor. The balance of this program affords variety and entertainment destined to please the entire family.

THE HIP

The Hip starts its week today with three feminine stars of the camera world and one man who stands in a class by himself. Beginning with Clara Kimball Young today and tomorrow in "Camille," one of her assured successes, Viola Dana, dainty and diminutive, follows Tuesday and Wednesday in one of those light, pretty pictures for which she is famous, "Aladdin's Other Lamp" and then Thursday and Friday, Anita Stewart, who has been absent from the Hip screen since early in the spring, returns in her latest picture, "Clover's Rebellion." Charlie Chaplin concludes the week playing Saturday and also the following Sunday.

The usual augmentation of a Pathe news reel on Monday with a Pathe Combitone on Tuesday and Wednesday and a Frank Daniels comedy of the "Captain Jinks" series, which Thursday and Friday sees another Pathe weekly and a new Big V comedy, is offered.

The manager of the Hip, who has just returned from a business trip to Los Angeles, reports the booking for every Saturday of a splendid Vitaphone special one and two-reel feature, embellished in each case with the names of several now famous stars at the head of their own company.

The Selznick as well as Goldwyn pictures have been also added to the
